Multilateral Cooperation

The heads of Asian coast guard agencies (from 17 countries and 1 region in Asia, including ASEAN countries, China, Korea, and India) gather at the Heads of Asian Coast Guard Agencies Meeting (HACGAM) to strengthen regional cooperation in Asia, which possesses some of the world's most important marine traffic routes including Straits of Malacca and Singapore.

At the Meeting, concrete cooperation programs are promoted in the five common issues that the participating countries and region are faced with, i.e., search and rescue, environmental protection, countermeasures against massive natural disasters, controlling unlawful acts at sea and capacity building.

Bilateral Cooperation

Following the M/V Alondra Rainbow case in October 1999, JCG began high-level meetings and combined exercise with Indian Coast Guard in 2000, and has been working closely with them to reinforce measures against pirates in Somalia, etc.

Connecting the Seas

All of the JCG's duties are linked with other countries via the ocean and are performed in close relation to the international situation. In order to ensure marine safety and security, it is vital to cooperate and collaborate with foreign coast guard agencies. The international undertakings described below are thus becoming increasingly important.
