

Closing Remarks

Distinguished delegates, ladies and gentlemen,

Now we have come to the end of the conference.

Throughout the conference, we have shared and discussed our perspective view of security matters. We have learned each other's view. I am confident that our shared knowledge and perspective view will contribute to the security policy making process of the countries concerned. We should be proud of ourselves for achieving something that will contribute to stable situation in the region.

We have our different perspectives. But we all are one thing in common. We all want to see the stable region in which countries can seek peace and prosperity comfortably. I deeply believe that we can build our better future based on our commonness.

I would like to express my profound thanks to all delegates here and respective governments and people for supporting and assisting meaningful conclusion of this conference.

I wish all of you safe returning home.

Thank you.
